INSULL TO BE HELD IN HARBOR FOR AT LEAST 48 HOURS

Fugitive Financier To Be Subjected To Interrogation
By A Prosecutor

HIS ARREST REQUESTED

American Ambassador Asks
Turkey for Formal Arrest

ISTANBUL, Mar. 30.—(INS)—Samuel Insull, halted abruptly in his flight from extradition to the United States, will be held aboard his chartered freighter in the harbor here for at least 48 hours, he was told by Turkish police today.

The fugitive American financier will be subjected to interrogation by a public prosecutor, Insull, upon being told this, collapsed.

The American ambassador informed International News Service that he had formally asked Turkey to arrest Insull, and that he was awaiting a reply from Ankara, the capital.

The aged Insull, who yesterday felt sure he had staved off extradition for at least another five or six months, was believed by police to have contemplated suicide today at the sudden turn of events. A special police guard aboard Insull's flight ship, the Maiotis, maintained a constant watch through his cabin window during the night to prevent a suicide attempt.

The Maiotis was held here under a special guard just as she was about to sail yesterday into the Black Sea, having formally cleared for Constantza, Rumania.

It was likely, International News Service learned, that Insull would be taken ashore and given the choice of staying in either a hotel or hospital, under police surveillance, pending the prosecutor's hearing.

If, after the interrogation, police felt justified in doing so, they will hand Insull over to American authorities here for extradition to the United States to face charges of grand larceny and fraudulent bankruptcy in connection with the collapse of his great Middle Western public utilities enterprises.

A new extradition treaty between the United States and Turkey, already ratified by the American Congress, was expected to be put into effect tomorrow after formal approval by the Turkish national assembly.

Police first told Insull he would have to submit to a police guard inside his cabin in order to prevent him from taking his own life. Insull refused, whereupon he was told he at least must leave his cabin door open.

He refused to do this also, declaring he would watch the door shut. Then police were posted to watch through the cabin window, a procedure against which the indicted utilities magnate also protested, but futilely.

Friends here attempted to procure legal aid for Insull, but their task was complicated by the fact that authorities refused to permit the American to have any sort of communication with anyone ashore. In addition no one was allowed to leave or board the Maiotis, excepting officers.

Death House Is Dance Hall In Prison Jargon

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 30.—(INS)—"King" Thomas of the "big house" speaks two languages—one the language of the outside world, and the other that of the "men back of the walls."

The "King" is Preston E. Thomas, warden of Ohio Penitentiary, and the title is one of the interesting items in the unique collection of words that every prisoner, at least every veteran prisoner, knows by heart.

A few of the words have become a part of ordinary slang. These include "moll" for gangster's sweetheart, "hoosegow" for jail, and "law" for policeman.

But most of the others present no clue as to their meaning unless they are explained. For example, the prison death house is a "dance hall," sunshine is "gold," diamonds are "ice," a dollar bill is an "ace," and nitroglycerin a "stew."

A prosecuting attorney is called a "cuter," and the container used for carrying a machine gun is a "violin case." A "pineapple" and a "rod" are a bomb and a gun respectively, and a "thimble" a stolen watch. A "Yentzer" is a cheater and a "kite" a note to be smuggled out. "Tail" is the reward for arrest of a criminal.

E. V. KUEHNER DIES

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 30.—Eugene V. Kuehner died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. H. Detmer, here, Wednesday evening, at the age of 64 years. He had been ill for some time. Funeral will be held Monday morning at Trockeeville.

PORTLAND, Ore.—(INS)—A "Merry Christmas" greeting mailed seven years ago finally reached L. S. Wright of Portland and reminded him that a friend in Astoria had wished him the best of Yuletide wishes December 29, 1926.

EDGELY

Word has been received of the death of a former well known resident of Edgely, Miss Anna Mathers, at the home of her mother in Ardmore, after an illness of three weeks. Miss Mathers was a teacher in the public school at Ardmore, and until the past few weeks had enjoyed good health. Her passing was a great shock to her many friends in this community.

Roosevelt Headed For Second Day of Fishing

By Edward B. Lockett

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NASSAU, Bahamas, Mar. 29.—Flying the four-star presidential flag, the yacht Nourmahal, carrying President Roosevelt, arrived here at 8.30 a. m. at dusk today.

As President Roosevelt, for the second time since he took office, touched British territory, the British naval vessel Danae fired the presidential salute, and the band struck up the "Star-Spangled Banner." President Roosevelt received the salute from the quarter-deck of the Nourmahal.

The Astor yacht, aboard which the President is enjoying a vacation, fishing and cruising in southern waters, steamed slowly up the harbor and dropped anchor.

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 30.—(INS)—President Roosevelt, a guest of Vincent Astor on his yacht, Nourmahal, headed for Nassau and a second day of fishing and sports.

The President planned to be in the British possession shortly after noon. He expected to stay in the quaint old West Indies port several hours or more. This marked the second time that Mr. Roosevelt has entered foreign territory since he came into the White House.

The President continued to refuse to comment on the action of Congress in overriding his veto of the Independent Offices bill. He regards his present trip strictly as a vacation, and will not take up serious duties again until he is back in the White House.

The President's host, Vincent Astor, took his distinguished guest to Sandy Cay, northwest of Settlement Point, for the first day of his outing. There, the President had a good swim, and later in the afternoon hung enthusiastically over the aft end of the boat with rod and reel in his hand. Today Mr. Roosevelt expected to catch more fish. Nassau was scheduled for early afternoon. The luxurious Nourmahal will weigh anchor after the visit in the British possession and head directly for waters which old time pilots have described to the President today as swarming with fish.

Four Speakers Address Tullytown Democratic Club

TULLYTOWN, Mar. 30.—The Tullytown Democratic Club held a meeting in Monti's hall, here, last evening, with 50 in attendance. George Younger, Bristol, presided.

Mr. Younger presented the following speakers: M. Kapper; S. J. Thomas, Andalusia; John Smoyer, Bristol; Mrs. W. Parrish, Crofton.

Social committee appointed for April includes: Lewis Poane, chairman; Richard Chase, William White, Joseph Zuchero, Howard Wright. This meeting will occur on April 12th.

SUGGESTS PLANS FOR HOLDING EDUCATION WEEK

Dr. Rule Outlines Possible
Programs for Schools to Follow

OBSERVED APRIL 1 TO 7

HARRISBURG, Mar. 30.—Various ways in which Pennsylvania communities may observe the public school centennial during Pennsylvania Education Week, April 1-7, were outlined today by Dr. James N. Rule, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In a recent proclamation Governor Pinchot officially set aside the first week in April as Pennsylvania Education Week for the special observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the Common Schools Law. He asked that the flags of the United States and Pennsylvania be displayed during the week and called upon the people through their various organizations and institutions "to give appropriate recognition to the contribution which public education has made to the moral, social, civic, and commercial life of the Commonwealth, to the end that all shall appreciate the true value of our free public schools as the real basis of a competent and lasting citizenship."

Even though the Easter vacation period will extend through part of the anniversary week, Superintendent Rule reports that practically every Miss Margaret Wilson Ely, aged 73, of "Cintra," New Hope, died Wednesday in the Bryn Mawr Hospital after an illness of a few weeks. Miss Ely organized the Free Library of New Hope and Solebury 26 years ago and was the librarian. She was chairman of the New Hope Public Health Association and active in many other matters of public welfare. A few years ago she compiled a history of New Hope. She was the daughter of the late Richard Ely and is survived by one brother, William Newbold Ely, of Philadelphia. Miss Ely made her home at "Cintra," a picturesque residence on the York Road, modeled after a wing of a famous castle in Portugal. Funeral services will be held from her late home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, with interment private in Solebury Friends' Burial Grounds.

Dr. William VonBieren, of Perkasie, was elected temporary chairman of the Perkasie Fish and Game Association at the organization meeting Tuesday night. Phares Bader was named temporary secretary.

Seventy-five sportsmen from Perkasie, Sellersville, East and West Rockhill, Bedminster and Hilltown townships were present at the session held in the fire hall. Forty paid dues of one dollar for the year. The following membership committee was appointed to report at the next meeting on April 19: William Helfrich, of Perkasie; Claude Groff, of Blooming Glen; Willis O. Myers, of Bedminster; William Loughridge, of Sellersville; and Henry Gentner, of Sellersville.

All that is recorded in printed Bucks county history about Spring Valley—recently known as Mechanics Valley, is that it is "a mail station."

The village never grew much and it is just about as large today as it was when it was named, but there are prospects in sight of Spring Valley becoming a very attractive home colony.

This week the post office authorities granted the right to change the village back to the original name of Spring Valley, which was changed some years ago to Mechanics Valley. Another Spring Valley post office in Pennsylvania was older, so the name had to be changed earlier.

The center of activity in Spring Valley for many years was the old grist mill built in 1724 and still in operation for grinding oyster shells.

The name Spring Valley originated from the springs in the immediate vicinity that fed Mill Creek. The springs operated five mills within a radius of a mile of the village. Four of the mills are now out of existence as regular operated plants.

Congress Settles Down To Complete Program

By William K. Hutchinson

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—(INS)—After staging a dramatic revolt on government pay and veterans' legislation, Congress settled down today to prove its loyalty to President Roosevelt by promptly completing his legislative program.

Another serious revolt this session unless Mr. Roosevelt submits a controversial international issue. He can not secure power to slash the nation's foreign debts nor can he secure ratification of the World Court this session, observers said.

The unexpected over-riding of his veto on the independent offices appropriation bill gave the new Congress a taste of its power. The ice of revolt was broken but the Democrats still have tremendous majorities in both House and Senate, ready to follow the President on other domestic legislation.

This was demonstrated when the House promptly enacted a bill, granting Mr. Roosevelt's request for power to negotiate reciprocal tariff agreements. It authorized him to increase or slash tariff duties. The vote was 273 to 111. A three year limit was placed on the President's exercise of this power, as the only concession to the staunch opposition. The Administration was in complete control.

LIQUOR STORES SALES JUMP

Harrisburg, Mar. 30.—Stemming the downward trend, sales in the state's liquor stores soared to $788,398.60 during the week ending March 25, an increase of more than $60,000. The Liquor Board's report showed today that total sales since the first of the year aggregate $7,777,393.00.

ARREST IN EXTORTION PLOT

Pittsburgh, Mar. 30.—Arrested by Federal authorities in what is claimed to have been a $15,000 extortion death plot against James F. Keenan, wealthy warehouse executive, W. Walter Dolan, a former employee, was being held for Court here today. Dolan denied the charges when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Knox. Four extortion notes were sent to Keenan, each demanding $15,000 "in small bills" and threatening death if the money was not paid and if authorities were notified.

Valley who lived there fifty years ago remain. Some of the old stone houses have been purchased by new parties and have been restored and occupied by folks who have moved out from the towns and cities.

Post-office authorities in Doylestown have received word from the United States Post Office Department in Washington, D. C., stating that the star route mail service between Lumberville and Doylestown will be re-established after it had been taken out of service on January 15, of this year. Resumption of the service between Doylestown and Lumberville, it has been announced will take place on Monday, April 2.

Many patrons residing between Lumberville and Doylestown will be benefitted as a result of the resumption of the service. After a discontinuance of the service in January these patrons were compelled to depend upon other sources for the delivery of their mail and one of these was the rural free delivery out of Doylestown.

With the service going into effect on Monday, these people no longer will receive their mail by the rural free delivery route, but instead will get it directly from the Mechanicsville post-office and the star route which has just been established as they had been before the service was discontinued in January.

The new service will give the Mechanicsville post-office a mail from Lumberville at about 9.30 in the morning and one from the Doylestown office at about 4.15 in the afternoon.

GIRLS' CHORUS ENTRANCES TWO SERVICE CLUBS HERE

Group of 12 from Coming Production, "Help Yourself," Appears

GET GREAT RECEPTION

Quite an innovation greeted members of the Rotary and Exchange clubs yesterday at their regular weekly meetings. They had the pleasure and thrill of seeing a group of young women from this community participating in a dancing chorus which held them spellbound. Then as the concluding number was given, the men so delighted with the performance, broke forth in applause.

It was the specialty chorus of the musical comedy, "Help Yourself," which is to be staged here Thursday and Friday, April 5th and 6th, for the benefit of the Junior Women's Club Crumrine Scholarship Fund. It is being sponsored by the Junior Women's Clubs of Bucks County.

The chorus first appeared at the dinner meeting of the Rotarians held in the Elks' Home at 12.30, then again in the evening at the meeting of the Exchange Club, where they were guests at dinner.

This group of 12 young women, with the agility and suppleness of youth and with pleasing smiles upon their faces, go through their steps with perfection, and when it is realized that they have been under instruction for only a few days, it is remarkable the progress they have made.

The young women wear costumes of red velvet shorts, white satin blouses and gold slippers.

The personnel includes: The Misses Eleanor Moore, Elizabeth LeCompte, Bess McGinley, Betty Hill, Marian Harrison, Margaret Pope, Louise Lawrence, Thelma Wallace, Ruth Blanche, Vera Yeagle, Margaret Fox and Alice Kotting.

The facility with which the group has acquired the steps is a subject of much comment and those who have witnessed some of the rehearsals claim that this is going to be the snappiest show ever put on the boards here.

The young women are working hard to make it a great success and the committee is striving to make the affair go over big.

Members of the various junior women's clubs and many other citizens of Bristol, Langhorne, Southampton, and nearby communities envisioning themselves perhaps as prima donnas or ballet artists, are stealthily trying out taps and voice range in preparation for the production.

Almost everyone has a sneaking suspicion that he or she might do something in this line and such an opportunity is not to be turned down. So the youngest is going stage-minded in the hope they be rewarded with a place in cast or chorus.

Rehearsals for this big production which is expected to attract capacity houses from all Bucks County, are being held every afternoon at the Grand Theatre and every night at the Travel Club Home, under the expert direction of Violet Benton McClure, of New York City.

Max McClure's slogan is "Amateur productions professionally produced." Mr. Harold Green, Langhorne, is senior chairman of the entire work. Tentative plans now call for evening performances on Thursday and Friday nights, with a children's matinee on Thursday afternoon.

Tickets are now being sold and reserved seats go on sale tomorrow at the United Cut Rate Store, Mill street.

3 DEAD IN MINE EXPLOSION

Wilkes-Barre, Mar. 30.—With the death of Ignatz Daniels, 26, a rock unloader, the toll of death in the explosion at the Dorrance Mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company was raised to three today. Daniels' body was badly burned and he suffered shock.

REINSTATE THREE TEACHERS

Pittsburgh, Mar. 30.—Peace and tranquility descended on the troubled school strike situation in three western Pennsylvania communities today as authorities capitulated to "holidaying students" in Franklin, near Johnstown. Three teachers, whose discharge resulted in a strike at the high school, were reinstated at a special session of the school board. The citizens backed the pupils in their demands. All other student strikes in Cambria county, with the exception of a controversy in Ferndale had ended today.

U. S. STEEL BOOSTS WAGES

New York City, Mar. 30.—A ten per cent wage increase "subject to such adjustments as may be found desirable and neutrally satisfactory" was announced today by the United States Steel Corporation.

FOURTEEN MEN HURT

Scranton, Mar. 30.—Fourteen men were injured, two seriously today, when approximately one acre of roof collapsed at the Coalbrook Mine of the Hudson Coal Company at Carbondale. The men were not buried under the fall since they were working some distance away, but were knocked over by the concussion.

ARRANGE KAHN FUNERAL

New York City, Mar. 30.—Funeral arrangements for Otto H. Kahn, internationally known financier and patron of the arts, who died suddenly from a heart attack yesterday, will be completed today. Mr. Addie Wolf Kahn, the financier's widow was reported to be prostrated and under the care of a physician. The banker's death coming with dramatic suddenness, provided a distinct shock for the metropolis where he was a noted and familiar figure as it had not been generally known that he was in ailing health.

SHIP BUILDERS STILL OUT

Camden, N. J., Mar. 29.—With the Federal government reportedly prepared to sound out sentiment within their union, some 3000 striking employees of the New York Shipbuilding Company tenaciously clung to their bitter-end attitude today. It was reported that General Hugh S. Johnson's newly-created industrial arbitration board for the shipbuilding industry is making ready to conduct a secret poll of the local membership of the Industrial Marine and Shipbuilding Workers' Union. The object of the poll would be to ascertain whether the union leaders contention that the members are opposed to government supervised arbitration is true.

TWO MEN FILE SUITS OF DIVORCE FROM WIVES

A Wife Charges Her Husband
With Being Cruel and Barbarous

WERE ONLY WED IN FEB.

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 30.—Three libels in divorce, two of which were filed by men, were filed in the Court of Common Pleas, here, on Wednesday.

Charging his wife with desertion, Albert A. Lindner, of 328 North Main street, this place, has started divorce proceedings. According to the libel, Mr. and Mrs. Lindner, whose name is Marian Z. Lindner, were married July 25, 1931, in Doylestown. The residence of the respondent is James Manor, it is alleged.

In a libel in divorce Ruth W. Rockefeller, of Holicon, alleges that her husband, Robert S. Rockefeller, made life intolerable for her with his cruel and barbarous treatment. They were united in marriage February 1, 1934, at Doylestown. The present residence of the respondent is unknown.

William George Stone, the libellant, in a divorce action begun yesterday, alleges that his wife, Blanche Stone, deserted him. Mr. Stone and his wife were united in marriage at Shimerstown in 1907.

Mr. Stone is a resident of Plumstead, and according to the libel, the respondent is living in Carlisle.

Three Killed and Nine Missing in Hotel Fire

LONGVIEW, Texas, Mar. 30.—(INS)—At least three persons were killed today and nine others were missing in a raging fire which swept the three-story Longview Hotel here, trapping dozens of sleeping guests in their rooms.

Many of the guests, their escape cut off by the flames which whipped through the corridors and up the stair wells, were forced to jump from windows of the 250-room hostelry.

Firemen who succeeded in recovering three bodies from the blazing structure estimated that the death toll would reach ten.

More than a dozen of the guests who leaped from the windows were treated for burns and injuries in Longview Hospital. Physicians said five of these were in serious condition. One man suffered a fractured spine, when he climbed out on the sill of a third floor window and leaped.

Authorities said the hotel, a stucco structure, was nearly filled to capacity.

SOLEMN SERVICES OF DEVOTION HELD TODAY

Meditations, Holy Communion
Arranged at Churches
In This Section

FOR GOOD FRIDAY

Today, Good Friday, is one of the important days in the calendar of the Christian Church, one that has been observed by solemn services of devotion down through the centuries.

Practically every Christian Church in this section, and throughout the land, are today conducting special services of devotion commemorating the crucifixion of the Christ.

Among the local churches which arranged services for today are:

Bristol Methodist Episcopal Church, 7.45, Holy Communion, with "The Cost of Salvation" as the meditation subject of the pastor, the Rev. Clarence Howell; Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, eight o'clock, service in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Andrew G. Solia; Bristol Presbyterian Church, Sacrament of Communion and reception of new members at eight p. m.; Harriman M. E. Church, administration of Holy Communion, 7.45 p. m., with sermon by the pastor, the Rev. G. W. Shires; St. James's P. E. Church, three hour meditation between the hours of 12 and three p. m., on the seven last words of Jesus Christ, service so arranged that any can enter or leave at any time, while at eight o'clock this evening there will be evening prayer; union Good Friday service at eight o'clock at Bethel A. M. E. Church, with choirs of Bethel Church and Second Baptist Church combining, also meditation on the seven last words of the Christ.

In the suburban area many worshippers will gather today to worship the One who walked this earth nearly 2000 years ago, and Who gave His life on the cross for the redemption of His own.

In the outlying communities the services will be: Andalusia P. E. Church, eight o'clock, evening prayer and address; Hulmeville Methodist Church, sermon on "The Three Crosses" delivered at eight o'clock by the minister, the Rev. T. William Smith, soloist, Miss Adeline E. Reetz; Hulmeville Episcopal Church, meditation, directed by the vicar, the Rev. James C. Gilbert, at eight o'clock; St. James's P. E. Church, Langhorne, meditation upon "The Three Hours Agony" from 12 noon to three p. m.

South Langhorne Lutheran Church, Holy Communion, at 7.30 p. m.; Tullytown Methodist Church, 7.30, this evening, Good Friday service.

At a number of the edifices throughout this morning and this afternoon special services are being conducted by the ministers in charge.

Offers Himself For Sale In Ad. To High Bidder

HOUSTON, Texas, Mar. 30.—(INS)—Many, many years have swept by since the sound of the auctioneer's hammer closed sales on slaves and so when J. C. Lee had an advertisement in a local paper offering to sell himself to the highest bidder, the matter attracted considerable comment here. Lee made the offer, he said, because of the need for money to care for his ill eighteen-year-old daughter. He told a tragic story of the effects of the depression on his personal fortune and said he placed the ad. in a desperate move to secure aid.

Lee, who is 50, is a steam-fitting engineer by trade. Efforts to secure work have proved futile, he said.

The man said he had sold his watch, car, most of his clothes, and everything of value, in order to care for his daughter. "That's why I am willing to sell myself for the rest of my life," he said.

Fellow-Houstonians, reading of Lee's plight, deluged newspaper offices with offers of aid—and it appears that the 50-year-old man and his daughter will have a truly "new deal."

ALL CWA PROJECTS ARE SUSPENDED; MEN LAID OFF YESTERDAY

Only Those Eligible To Relief
Are To Be Employed

ORDER OF ERIC BIDDLE

Greatly Reduced Quota of Men To Be Given
Employment

"C. W. A. workers in Bucks County were laid off Thursday. Only those who are eligible to relief will be given jobs thereafter, but those jobs will be restricted to 'desirable' projects only, and will be given only to persons 'eligible to relief,' subject to reduced quota which is now 825 men for Bucks County which was formerly 1800," according to a statement from the office of Bucks County administrator, John S. Roberts, Jr., today.

That was the edict promulgated Thursday by Eric H. Biddle, who combines the jobs of C. W. A. Administrator for Pennsylvania and executive director of State Emergency Relief Board.

Mr. Biddle laid down the rules sounding the death knell of the C. W. A. in an address before about 350 County Administrators and Relief Directors assembled in Harrisburg on Thursday.

Mr. Biddle advises that this quota may be further reduced due to lack of relief funds.

No word has been received from Harrisburg as to how much money will be allotted to Bucks County nor what projects will be approved.

"Until this information is received, all C. W. A. projects in Bucks County must be suspended," states Mr. Roberts.

Payrolls in State Are Boosted; Envelopes Fatter

By James G. Kinkaid

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 30.—(INS)—With Pennsylvania payrolls being boosted over a million dollars monthly in the short space of 48 hours, the last week went down in the Commonwealth's history as perhaps its most amazing seven-day period.

Close to 150,000 steel workers from one end of the state to the other will find their pay envelopes fattened by 10 per cent beginning next week.

Fully a score of concerns in the steel and iron industry announced increases in wage scales effective April 1. The increase in buying power should continue the gains made in business since the middle of January.

Observers feel that the present production figures of the steel industry will be boosted in the wake of the wage increases as consumers attempt to beat possible price rises. However, the main features of the higher wage is the dissipation of a serious strike threat.

Coal production continued to climb above normal during the week and in the bituminous fields operations were approximately three points higher than a week ago. The week's news was marked by the announcement that two "captives" of Bethlehem Steel will resume operations next week.

Electric power output showed a two point gain during the week as coal operations continued to climb. Much of this gain can be traced to a sharp uptrend in steel operations in the Philadelphia area.

Oil production was comparatively steady with the Bradford Field showing an increase. The Allegheny Field was off about 40 barrels daily.

Textiles slackened slightly as Easter orders were filled and new orders fell down somewhat. However, employment in this industry continues to hold up well.

Rubber plants were once more enjoying a steady flow of orders as the auto strike situation calmed and renewed orders began coming through regularly.

COSTLY MOURNING

PARIS.—(INS)—France's official mourning period for the death of King Albert has cost Parisian hotel proprietors a fat amount of francs. When Prime Minister Doumergue ruled that the ministers in his cabinet were not to attend public functions, banquets in the capital were badly hit. "For what," say the French, "is a banquet without a gros legume (a big vegetable)?" The hotel people, employers and employees are finding that question a tough one to answer.

DENVER.—(INS)—A. C. Burbank has found a way to retain some of his hoarded gold. He wrote the treasury department, asking permission to keep $35 in gold. "You see, I don't want to be caught dead without funeral expenses," he explained. Uncle Sam explained that the only coins he could keep were those which would have value to collectors. Burb

FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 1934

GOOD FRIDAY

A life and death of profound and solemn importance to nineteen centuries of history gave the world no certain dates for commemoration. But it was fitting that the Easter festival should be identified with the resurrection of the year in Christian lands, so that the annual miracle of life reborn amid the sadness and weariness of winter should celebrate the most sacred mystery of Christianity.

The most earnest hunger of the human heart is for assurance of life beyond death; the riddle that perplexes all mankind is the purpose of life and the destination of its cares and labors and agonies. Today is no different from yesterday in this respect; race and religion are superficial differences in the presence of this universal need and questioning. Yet to every thoughtful man it is known that death awaits the end of all life, and yet life is eternally and miraculously renewed in richness and beauty. Winter gives way to spring in a perennial parable of this drama of death and resurrection, a challenge to those of little faith and a comfort and joy to all who cherish in simplicity and sincerity the promise of immortality.

In the shadow of the last hour, the Man of Sorrows said to his disciples: "Let not your heart be troubled." Among His last words of comfort was the promise renewed with every cycle of the seasons, every commemoration of the dark drama of the Crucifixion, every renewal of faith and hope in the heart of man. "Yet a little while and the world seeth Me no more. But ye see Me; because I live, ye shall live also."

SCIENCE AGAIN SCORES

That science may be well on the way to discovery of a preventive vaccine for the type of sleeping sickness that became epidemic last year in St. Louis, Kansas City, Mo., and Paris, Ill., is revealed in an announcement by the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research.

It will be recalled that the outbreak, with its accompanying high death rate, caused nation-wide alarm. Experts in various lines of medical research went to the affected areas and assisted in efforts to penetrate the mysteries of the baffling disease. Those concentrated their attention largely toward finding the cause. Success was achieved last fall, when the Rockefeller institute, announced the virus, called "the St. Louis encephalitis," had been found.

This marked the first important step in the search for a preventive. Since then, the institute reveals, a vaccine has been developed strong enough to protect mice against from 1,000 to 1,000,000 doses of the virus. The vaccine apparently has not yet been tried on human subjects, but its success when used on mice gives promise that it will meet the higher need.

Development of the serum was described by Leslie T. Webster and George L. Fite of the institute in an article in Science. The immunity obtained with mice, they said, "has persisted unchanged for three weeks and doubtless endures much longer."

Well, numbers can be employed after all the letters of the alphabet have been used up by the government in designating recovery bur-

"THE LONE WOLF'S SON"

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

SYNOPSIS

Sailing from France to America aboard the S.S. "Navarre," Michael Lanyard, reformed "Lone Wolf," erstwhile master crook, meets wealthy Fay Crozier, one of his antique shop patrons, and her lovely daughter Fenno. Mrs. Crozier shows Lanyard the famous Habsburg emeralds which she bought secretly to avoid payment of duty. Lanyard's experienced eye discovers that counterfeiters have been substituted for the gems. He promises to try and retrieve the emeralds. Lanyard suspects Maurice Parry, a youthful fellow-passenger, who appears deeply interested in Fenno. The resemblance between Lanyard and Maurice causes the former to wonder if they are related. In a bridge game with two card sharks, Maurice loses heavily. Lanyard joins the players as Parry's partner, and threatens to expose them unless Maurice's loss is called off. Later, Lanyard tells the appreciative Maurice that he can repay him by returning Mrs. Crozier's jewels. The youth removes the top of his can only to find that Lanyard had been there before him and had replaced the stolen emeralds with the zircons (false gems). Maurice discloses that he is Lanyard's son whom the latter believed killed during the war. Though happy at the reunion, Lanyard is disappointed to find his son a thief. Maurice explains he was forced to steal since boyhood in order to exist. Lanyard leaves his boy with the warning: "Watch yourself with Fenno if you value your secret," and winks as he goes to his cabin.

CHAPTER IX

It isn't the matter of common knowledge it might be that the timeless gods are lonely and as a rule more gratified than humbled by minor irreverences which impute to them some fellowship with men. That other amateur of human nature, ironic Eros, for example, repaid Lanyard's wink in the dark by staring for him, when he came on deck about mid-morning, a tableau as winsome as you please.

The day had broken clear but windy with a jeweled sea and one lively enough to lend the lean swift ship a noticeable roll. The poorer sailors were keeping their cabins and most of the passengers about were males. Fenno Crozier might have claimed two-score cavaliers if he had cared to, but had suffered herself to be cut out by one. Maurice Lanyard had the girl all to himself where a jog in the superstructure served as a windbreak—and was flying every indication of being much set up by his success.

As he might well have been! There wasn't a prettier nymph aboard the Navarre. Lanyard would have laid long odds for that matter, there wasn't another so fetching on the whole Western Ocean, whose coloring was as clear as the day's, whose eyes held the blue dream of the sea as well as its laughter. Eyes that were all for Maurice too, as his were for Fenno; though his father, emerging from the forward companionway entrance, stood a full minute at gaze, neither of the two was aware that he existed.

Lanyard didn't mind that, but bucked the wind that blustered at rather than risk raising a bid to make their company a crowd. Enough thus to have seen one's hard-won heartcraft proving itself in practice: a parent less elderly might not have known that one only needed to warn one's young of danger to see them rush to meet it with widespread arms. The sooner that sweet mischief achieved her ambition to hear Maurice call her father names, the happier for the dark paternal design. Maurice with a sore heart wouldn't be half the danger to himself that Maurice was today in his overblown conceit.

Lanyard battled round the forward end of the superstructure and with the wind at his back, scudded down the port side till he brought up standing at the after-rail elbow to

"How, Lone Wolf!" Crane with open releasing the stem of his pipe gave a tight grin. "Heap plenty war medicine-man and proud of it, ain't you? All I got to say is I hope you come through with your scalp on."

"Meaning—" Lanyard had an unaffected stare.

"The way you've always had, anyhow as often as I've had the pleasure of watching you strut your stuff, of making a dead set for trouble and landing in it up to your neck. Referring particularly to last night's performance. Mind telling if you had any special reasons for say they seemed to take my interference meekly."

"Seemed to be right, and about the only sensible words you've said so far. If it was me I'd feel a lot like a guy that had stepped on the tails of a couple of rattlesnakes, preventing them from sounding the well-known alarm, but not from turning on him. What on earth their style last night was the fact that I knew them and didn't hanker for any shipboard publicity."

"Then I should say I hadn't a great deal to fear from them."

"Not this side Quarantine—maybe. I wouldn't put any cussedness

Fenno Crozier might have claimed two-score cavaliers, but Maurice Lanyard had the girl all to himself.

not letting that kid take his trim ming, after he'd asked for it?"

"One is to understand, then, you believe in standing idly by when card-sharks are at work?"

"Wouldn't go so far as to say that, exactly. It would all depend on the card-sharks in question. If I'd had any idea you were going to wade into that show like you did, I'd've tipped you off to go slow and let the Captain settle their hash—as in due course he'd be bound to. I don't suppose it'll mean much to you, seeing you're only a poor ignorant foreigner, but I'm going to tell you who those birds were you got so fresh with."

"Does it matter?"

"That just goes to show how little you realize what New York has turned into, with what we called the underworld in the old days come right out of its burrows and doing business plumb in the public highways, as bold as brass and twice as hard-shelled. The down-East Yank that calls himself Clay this trip is John K. Anderson—'Jack-knife' Anderson back home—that used to be Leonard Schwartzstein's body-guard and gambling buddy. The other, Thwaites, also alias English Archie—Archibald Barker's his right name—is king of the fence ring and the only bore you can do business with when you're lead up with high-class swag such as the run of fences are scared to handle."

"But I haven't. Thanks all the same for the useful information."

"Go on," Crane granted, "—laugh, man, and show your ignorance. If you kid yourself that it's any matter for a kid mirth to run a foul of those two known murderers—"

"But for desperate characters such as you wish me to believe past them, seeing they've got to get hunk with you for spoiling all their smoking-room sport this voyage; and there's no knowing how many hatchet-men they've got, seeded among the passengers—mobmen of their class seldom travel without a tail-guard. If you take my advice, you'll take care not to get crept lonesome, say on deck late at night when there ain't any crowd of innocent bystanders."

Lanyard smiled amusedly. "But really! You alarm me."

"Yeah, I know—you scare awful easy. But they don't know you're one hard guy to tackle. Anyway, you used to be before you put ten years of living soft behind you."

"I think you will find I still can give a good account of myself—if, that is, these gentry—"

"Well, if you've got any idea that either Jack-knife or English Archie is thinking of making passes at you in person, you're crazy. That sort of thing ain't being done by the swell mob of the new school. Chances are, if anything does come of this, you'll find yourself up against some bird you never lamed before. So don't count too much on being able to think quicker than the other fellow; it's a good trick but you're out-thinking. Say, if I was able to think as quick as you can, I wouldn't be where I am today, sweating to keep level with my expenses."

"First you frighten me, then you flatter me! I am confused."

"I mean it. As a thinker I'm a plumb," Crane glumly confessed.

"Only way I ever get anything is by sinking the teeth in and hanging on till something gives."

A PREFERRED WAY TO FEED PLANTS

If there is one thing in which successful gardeners agree it's that plants need food. Professionals and amateurs alike have witnessed the amazing results obtained through regular feeding of plants, and the amateur gardener may well include the feeding of plants among his regular garden practices.

An effort to obtain the very best knowledge of how and what to feed plants is likely to prove confusing. A certain garden writer will recommend one thing, the local seed dealer another, while the landscape man something entirely different. That's because they have often obtained their information by the trial and error method under specific conditions, and while they have individually had good success, those who follow their advice do not always obtain equal results.

There is one method of plant feeding that is preferred by a majority of successful gardeners. It has several advantages over other methods, the most important of which are its simplicity, and its positive results. The scientific way of feeding plants is gaining in preference steadily over the pet methods of individuals which call for a handful of this and a handful of that and a pinch of something else if conditions seem to warrant.

Just as cookery experts have abandoned the old guesswork method in favor of exact recipes which give known results, so gardeners are turning to scientific plant feeding with complete, balanced plant food. Today, anyone can be sure that they are supplying their garden friends with all of the plant food elements they need for greater beauty. No longer need the gardener worry that bacterial action in the soil will not be quick enough to make the organics (manures and bone meal) available when the plants need food most. Even more important, automatic release of large quantities of plant food at a time detrimental to plants is no longer a problem. The use of modern, complete plant food gives the gardener complete control of his feeding problem.

Here is the new way of feeding plants which gives such sure results:

1. Don't overfeed plants. Four pounds of complete plant food per 100 square feet of lawn or garden area is the right amount to use in spring. More is wasteful and sometimes harmful.

2. In feeding established lawns, be sure the grass is dry—not damp from dew or rain. As soon as the grass is dry in the morning is the best time to apply plant food to the established lawn.

3. Always mix the plant food thoroughly with the top few inches of soil before seeding a lawn or garden. It is advisable, but not necessary, to wait a day before planting.

4. Keep the plant food off stalks and stems of established plants. If some gets on plants, just wash off with water.

5. Read the directions which manufacturers furnish. The finer results that you will get from your garden from proper use of plant food warrants the little time necessary for a careful reading.

A WORD ON BEETS

Economy is the stock and trade of the garden beet. It is grown for 100 per cent consumption, for the leaf, the root and the skin are all eaten, and are exceptionally healthy, too. Along with the radish, it is one of the earliest plants, and can be sown in the garden as soon as the ground is workable.

Thin sowing is not so important with the beet, in fact it is almost impossible to do this as the seeds, so-called, are really collections of seeds in a single husk and will result in bunches in spite of anything the planter might do to prevent it. Thinning can be done after the plants have reached a growth large enough to be pulled for greens.

Where baby beets are wanted to cook leaves and all, the plants should be left two or three inches apart in the rows. When the larger beet for buttering or pickling is desired this distance should be increased to six inches. It is a good idea to pull every other plant, using them for greens. The remaining ones will develop into baby beets, when they may be pulled, every other one again, and those still remaining in the ground will grow in to the larger varieties.

A help to germination when planting is to tread the soil firmly around the seeds. The date of planting is as early as the ground will admit of cultivation, and the beets may be grown the whole season long from the first of April to the first of August. It has become such a staple, in fact, that greenhouses have taken up their culture, making them available in the wintertime as well.

Roots two inches in diameter are considered the best for home use. Those that grow larger are oftentimes earthy tasting and somewhat woody. Select only the best seed possible, produced by a recognized seedman, to obviate the danger of poor quality plants. Two new beet varieties received awards in the All-America trials for 1934. They are Asgrow Wonder, and Perfected Detroit, both early varieties bred for fine texture, rich and even color and uniform size.

GOING VEGETARIAN

PARIS — (INS) — Within the past ten years the number of vegetarian restaurants here has increased 95 per cent. In 1924, there were 20 such restaurants; today there are 39, serving an average of 5,000 meals a day. All of these eating places are anti-wine, anti-liquor and anti-beer, although there are a few which permit the latter. Meals in these restaurants cost about 5 francs (35 cents).

NAIL IN KEG

DILLON, Mont. — (INS) — A hen belonging to a farmer here laid an egg containing more than the usual amount of iron. When the egg was broken, a three penny nail, almost as long as the egg itself, dropped into the frying pan.

school plans some formal observance. The celebration will not be confined to the one week but will be observed generally throughout the spring and fall months. Many high schools are planning commencement exercises based on local and State public school history.

For community-wide participation the following types of programs are suggested:

Exercises honoring residents of the community, both those now living and those who contributed to the early development of education in the community.

Parent-Teacher meetings featuring the needs of the schools and the development of public education in the State.

School assemblies and forums on the development of education in Pennsylvania.

Conferences of community leaders on public education problems and developments.

Open house at the school featuring the activities of the school.

Provision of speakers for regular meetings of luncheon clubs, women's clubs, parent-teacher groups, and other community organizations.

Education as a theme for church services on Sunday, April 8.

Pageants depicting "Then and Now" in public education, showing the growth and place of public education in the life of the Commonwealth.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., — The first prize fight Will Rogers ever attended had to be that disputed decision between Art Lasky and Leo Remago. When the two men were in the ring, Tracy, who had persuaded him to go to the Olympic Auditorium, were filing out, the gallery hounds were still in a furor.

"Can you beat that?" said Will. "They're even booing the audience now."

"Don't be a sucker—I'll sell out for $3,000,000."

Dick Barthelmess, nearing the finish of his last Warner Brothers picture and wanting to play a bit before he starts his free-lance career, will take Jessica and the children and go away somewhere. It may be Europe, or it may be up on Vancouver Island, where he and the Olive Brooks spent a happy holiday a few years ago. But, emphatically, he won't stay in the film colony.

"Hollywood is a pretty dull place if you're not active," he says. "What we need here is country life, like they have in the east. Where people come to see each other on horseback."

The same desire is causing other film people to push farther away from the studios—to buy up dozens of ranches in the San Fernando, some to go even greater distances. A few of the fortunate ones—Winfield Sheehan, Watterson Rothacker—have found their Eutopia in the more accessible "Happy Valley," only an hour's drive from Hollywood. There, in a telephoneless world, they forget the hectic rush of film-making.

Like all her fellow players, Bette Davis can't help being nervous about kidnappers. So the other night, when she discovered a car following her from the lonely location of the "Of Human Bondage" troupe, she stepped on the gas.

Through the rear vision mirror, she saw the lights of the car behind her suddenly spurt ahead too.

Bette was terrified. She pushed the accelerator to the floor. So did the driver behind.

As she neared the Mack Bennett studio on Ventura Boulevard, the little actress thought she saw a policeman by the side of the road. She of the road, she shouted.

"I say, Bette, you left your purse and fur on the set!"

It was Leslie Howard.

BLACK VELVET IS RETAINING FAVOR FOR "DRESS" AFFAIRS

By Nadia De Beaud
(I. N. S. Fashion Correspondent)

PARIS — (INS) — Black velvet retains its supremacy for dressy occasions. I thought that Madame Raymond Patenotre looked especially smart at a cocktail party recently given by the Baroness d'Almeida in a short sleeved black Chanel gown, the bodice of which closed obliquely. She wore over it a cloth coat trimmed with silver fox and a black velvet hat, the brim of which turned up. A fine veil softened the line.

Although Mrs. Patenotre is French, her husband's mother is an American, and his interests cover the two continents. In France, he has been Under Secretary through numerous Cabinets, and he is the owner of a number of

LOWER BUCKS LEAGUE MAKES SEASON'S PLANS

At a meeting of the Lower Bucks County Twilight Baseball League held last night in the A. O. H. home, plans were drawn up for the forthcoming season. Last year's president, Dave Landreth, presided at the meeting and decided to defer the election of officers until the next meeting.

Four of the six teams that were in the circuit last season were represented at the meeting, while the other two teams were listed as doubtful. Langhorne and Parkland were the absentees. It is almost certain that Langhorne will not be in the loop as this team withdrew before the close of last season. Parkland has not sent in its acceptance as yet.

There is a likelihood that Newtown and Morrisville may join the circuit and also talk of there being a club in Tullytown which may wish to join the loop. These clubs are invited to attend the meeting in the Hibernian home on next Thursday night.

Representatives of teams last night were: Hibernians, James Dolan and Neal McDevitt; Odd Fellows, Turner Ashby; Bristol A. A., John Mulholland; Hulmeville, Leon Comly.

PILES

Suffer no more! Here's real relief at last for all forms of Piles—Bleeding, Itching and Protruding. Pazo Outnet does all the things necessary, in the manner necessary. First, it soothes—relieves the soreness and inflammation. Second, it heals—repairs the torn tissue. Third, it absorbs—dries up excess mucus and reduces the swollen blood vessels which are Piles.

In other words, Pazo doesn't merely relieve—it tends to correct the condition of Piles as a whole.

The method of application makes it doubly effective. Special Pile Pipe attached to tube enables you to apply ointment high up in the rectum where it will reach all affected parts. Thousands say Pazo is the only thing that ever gave them real relief. Thousands say it saved them the need of an operation. Get Pazo today and suffer no longer.

PHILS' MANAGER THINKS CLUB WAY OUT IN FRONT

By Davis J. Walsh

(I. N. S. Sports Editor)
WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Mar. 30.—(INS)—If you take three wheels off a wagon, what have you got? Don't be silly, Julius; you've got an accident, which reminds me that I've just been looking at the Philadelphia National League baseball club. They're the club that's going to get along this year without Charley Klein, the hitter; Virgil Davis, the catcher, and a party by the name of "Pinkie" Whitney, third baseman.

Klein, Davis and Whitney have been sold or traded to Chicago, St. Louis and Boston respectively and I might add that it seems to me an old Philadelphia custom. Any time you're crazy enough to get good in Philadelphia, they're through with you; they call in the coroner and ask for an inquest. In other words, they take the money and you take the train.

However, hear Jimmy Wilson, the new manager, about that. He admits that Klein was good, which shows that, after all, there's nothing like being broad-minded. Still, in the matter of runs scored, Klein only finished in a tie for second place; so maybe that's the trouble.

"Trouble?" said Mr. Wilson today, in a puzzled way. "You must be crazy. Where's the trouble connected with a deal that permits one star to get away and gives us the money to buy only 'tops' in minor league material. I don't know how anybody else feels about it, but personally I think we're away out in front when we can buy minor leaguers like George Darrow, Galveston; Curtis Davis, San Francisco; Reg Grabowski, Reading; Lou Chiozza, Memphis; Meredith Hopkins, and Irv Jeffries, St. Paul, and Henry Oana, the Hawaiian from Portland.

"Trouble? You're in the wrong camp, mister. You must be looking for a place where they haven't got a young club that's hustling." But what about Davis, who hit .348 for the club and drove in a lot of runs? Well, it seems that Mr. Wilson didn't rightly know about that.

"But," said he, quickly, "Don't talk about that. Talk about this: Our regular pitchers—Phil Collins, Jim Elliott, Roy Hensen, Ed Holley, Austin Moore and Frank Pearce—averaged less than three earned runs per game in 77 games on the home grounds last year.

That's pitching. Also talk about this: Darrow won 22 for Galveston, Davis 20 for San Francisco and Grabowski 17 for Reading. That's pitching. And in case you want another name, there's Ted Kleinhaus, who won 19 per Atlanta."

And, I might add, that's talking. But it didn't stop the Phillies from finishing seventh last time and probably won't again.

They have no defense—but here's Mr. Wilson once more.

"No defense? Why, the key jobs are perfect. Bartell is the best shortstop in the league, Chick Fullis is the best centerfielder in the league and, as for the catching, I don't want to go too deeply into that, but the sport writers seem to think I'm pretty good."

"Hurt is one of the best first basemen in the league. Jeffries will hit for us and play plenty of second base. Either Chiozza or Hopkins will make good at third. Maybe both of them will and I won't know what to do. That would be terrible, wouldn't it?"

I agreed that it would and then said something about the rest of the outfield, outside of Fullis, being ordinary.

"Would you say that Schulmerich was ordinary?" he demanded.

Where Fourteen Homeless Died

An interior view, showing the charred remains of the Federal Transient Relief Bureau at Lynchburg, Va., where 14 homeless men lost their lives and 75 were injured, when flames which started in the kitchen raged through the dormitories. Many were injured in leaping from the windows of the blazing structure.

The Sluggers of Sport

By BURNLEY

THERE is no question but that the hard hitters of sport—the boys with the punch—make the best drawing cards, yet there is still room for debate as to whether the slugger type is the competitive superior of the sport stylist.

No amount of arguing will ever seem to settle the problem, and when you examine concrete cases of the slugger versus the stylist, the issue remains as much in the dark as ever.

Take tennis, for example. Ellisworth Vines, former national champion and now the outstanding professional racquet wielder, is probably the hardest hitting tennis player in the wide world. When "Elly" is hitting 'em right, a large percentage of his terrific shots are just unreturnable.

Yet if he is a little off his game, he becomes soft pickings for the steady, soft-stroking stylists of tennis. Last year he was eliminated in the Nationals by the tiny "Bitty" Grant, whose hardest stroke is just about the equivalent of one of Vines' lobs.

The same dilemma presents itself in prize-fighting, when you ponder the old boxer-versus-fighter problem.

Tunney, the boxer, beat Demsey, the fighter, when they met; but would the clever Gene have been able to evade the savage rushes of a Dempsey in his prime? It is highly doubtful, especially when you consider that, even though he was but a shadow of his old self, the Manassa Mauler put Tunney on the deck for a "fourteen count" in their last duel.

In golf, the question of superiority between the long hitters and the players with accurate short games also remains unsettled, although I think that on the links the edge must be given to the stylists over the sluggers.
